THE PEAK

The Peak is a weekly newspaper created by students, for students published every Monday on SFU campuses all year round. All SFU students can contribute to the paper or run for our editorial board. We run on the energy of our paid student staff and contributors. Learn how to write a compelling story, capture the right moments on camera, and become a part of a tight community on campus — join The Peak and make it your own.

Embark is a student-led non-profit society with over 30,000 undergraduate and graduate student members. We empower students to lead sustainable change at SFU through grants, training, and engagement opportunities. Our work has allowed us to acquire seats on SFU's Senior Sustainability Council, the Sustainable Mobility Advisory Committee, and enabled us to work closely with SFU to make the university more sustainable.

The SFU Women's Centre is a safer space for women to build community on campus, brought to you by the SFSS with further support from the GSS. Home to a special feminist library, a resource area for folks of all genders, and a 24/7 lounge for self-identified women, the Centre is an anti-oppressive space for celebration and healing on campus. Come by for free safer sex supplies, peer support, crisis referrals, and volunteer opportunities!

CJSF 90.1FM is Simon Fraser University's independent, volunteer-run campus/community radio station. Operated by the non-profit Simon Fraser Campus Radio Society, CJSF is an outlet for the diverse voices and sounds of our community, both on-campus and around Metro Vancouver. CJSF's studios are located in TC-216 on Burnaby campus, just above the Transportation Centre Information Kiosk.

Drop by the station weekdays from 9am to 5pm and ask a staff member about orientation times!

The Simon Fraser Student Society (SFSS) exists to improve the academic conditions, social experience, financial condition, and health and well-being of our undergraduate members. We provide assistance for campus events, advocate for issues that are important to our members, provide study and social spaces, oversee the undergraduate health and dental plan and much more. SFSS: for students, by students. Below are three of our student organizations.

Out On Campus is SFU's LGBATQ+ centre, brought to you by the SFSS with further support from the GSS. We provide a safer space on campus for people of all genders and sexualities. At our centre, you'll find a resource library, a free and diverse range of safer sex supplies, buttons, a lounge space, and volunteer opportunities. We run educational workshops and social events, and staff are trained to provide peer support and crisis referrals to folks of all genders.

The Graduate Student Society at Simon Fraser University

The Graduate Student Society at Simon Fraser University is a dynamic, member-driven organization that supports graduate students to achieve their personal, professional and academic goals at SFU and beyond. We provide many services to our members, including the U-Pass BC program, a comprehensive health and dental plan, and various emergency and academic grants. In addition, we represent and advocate for the interest of our members within the university and externally.
